Karen: How'd your meeting go? me: very well, we're all on the same page regarding what we want to do me: the project is being run through his agent, who's also Janeane Garofalo's, as well as a producer who used to write for Letterman but whom we may ditch because he seems to want some creative control but isn't really talented Karen: Cool! Do you like the agent? me: haven't met the agent yet, just met with the two of them me: but we decided, among other things, that we're not going to just do some watered down, dumbed down thing even if that's what the execs want me: because we could easily create the pilot ourselves and then shop it around me: we're going to try to do my vanderbilt/rs mccain story for the pilot me: as it would impress upon the execs that this show can create its own publicity by virtue of the amount of trouble we'll be causing, etc.
Karen: Cool! Keep me posted.
